To whom it may concern,

It gives me great honor and pleasure to inform you that we are working with Bertsch Technologies and are committed to their success. We are impressed by their concepts and believe that they will have a great benefit to the warfighters and first responders. In my experience, I have seen the Department of Defense and local rescue units rapidly acquire technologies that are as useful as the Bertsch rescue stretcher. Bertsch Technologies will have full access and support of Brightspear's services which are sure to make this project a huge success.

Brightsphear Armed Service Authority Inc. is a professional adviser to Department of Defense, military and civilian contractors. Our warfighters offer subject matter expertise that directly effects and aids missions and the troops on the front lines and training camps. We help manufacturers and service providers by informing them of the first hand opinions of how their products perform and hold up in the field. The guidance comes from the best source available ; the people who actually depend upon these products to save lives, win battles and protect freedom. Contractors rely on Brightspear and our advisers for quality end-user feedback and insight based on experience, knowledge, skill and creativity. We have a proven track record of saving our clients millions of dollars and years of time while providing new and innovative ideas that make a difference.

Services include:

- Testing, Evaluation and Training
- Concept of Operations Assessment
- Product and Service Research and Development Support
- Advanced Identification of Needs, Deficiencies and Requirements for operating forces.
- Compatibility, Integration and Feasibility consultation
- Technical, Tactical and procedural Advisement
- Marketing, sales and Advertising assessment and support

Brightsphear has a proven record for supporting and implementing many products and services that have gone from the drawing board and onto the battlefields. For example we have worked with DuPont® on fire resistant uniforms, L3® on weapon's optics, SPAWAR™ on communications technologies, Aerovironment® on Unmanned Aerial Systems and many other items that are in use today by our nations warfighters and first responders.

Bertsch Technologies' rescue stretcher has a great deal of potential and will be a force multiplier for those who acquire and implement it into their operations. We feel positive that it will be a huge success with the various life saving communities. It will become the new standard from which all others will be measured. Brightspear highly and enthusiastically supports Bertsch in its efforts to produce a superior rescue stretcher.
